Mrs. Percy Read Selected to Accompany Suffragists on Trip.
Announcement was made yesterday at national headquarters of the Congressional Union that Mrs. Percy Read, of Highland Springs, Va., would be the representative of that State on the "Suffrage Special" that will tour the free States in the interest of the movement to form a Woman's Party among the women voters.

The increasing number of Congressional Union envoys to the West will necessitate an additional car, it is thought, as twenty-four members of the Union have already signified their intentions to make the trip.

The envoys will carry with them appeals for help in securing the passage of the national suffrage amendment from women's organizations in the East to similar organizations of women voters in the West.

JURY IS LOCKED UP IN ACTRESS ASSAULT CASE

Twelve Men Fail to Reach Verdict Regarding Alleged Shooting on Part of Mrs. Lucille Seymour.

After listening all day to the testimony in the case of Mrs. Lucille Seymour, who is charged with assaulting Lawrence Hartgrove, a colored bell-boy at the Dunbar Hotel, with a dangerous weapon, the jury considered the case for two hours last evening and then was locked up for the night upon their failure to reach a verdict. Mrs. Seymour is charged with shooting the boy when he went up the stairs during an altercation she was having with her husband. This occurred on March 22. She admitted on the stand that she fired the shot, but claimed she did it in self-protection to prevent him from laying hands upon her.
The courtroom was crowded throughout the day, many actors being present to hear the testimony.
Attorney James A. O'Shea represents the defense, while the government's suit is in the hands of Assistant United States District Attorney William E. Leahy.

DANIELS FAVORS CONTINUING PLAN

Urges Abandonment of Year-to-year Construction Program for Navy.

HITS MUNITIONS MEN

Secretary Tells House Committee the Greatest Obstacle to Preparedness Is Cupidity of War Lords.

The abandonment of the year-to-year construction program for the navy and the adoption of a continuing program, such as has been proposed by the administration, were advocated by Secretary Daniels yesterday before the House Committee on Naval Affairs.

If such a course had been followed by Congress in 1903, he said, when the General Board recommended a program designed to keep the United States navy in second place, it would not have dropped to third place since.

The Department's construction program, as outlined to the committee, calls for the expenditure of $30,000,000 in 1917, $109,000,000 in 1918, $165,000,000 in 1919, $241,000,000 in 1920, and $103,000,000 in 1921. Secretary Daniels also advocated the expenditure of $25,000,000 within the five years for a reserve supply of ammunition, calling for $5,000,000 in the pending bill.

The cupidity of the manufacturers of munitions who demand from the government extortionate prices, was put forward by Secretary Daniels as the greatest obstacle in the way of preparedness. "I think the greatest trouble we have had," he said, "in getting a proper and well-balanced system of preparedness, has been that many good people of the country who are really in favor of it, are opposed to preparedness at a 112 per cent profit. In other words, they do not want to pay and exorbitant profit to munitions manufacturers."

For Continuing Program.

Members of the committee did not question the Secretary of the Navy as to the sufficiency of the five-year program or what he hopes to achieve by it. Some of them have indicated, however, that they do not regard it as adequate and naval officers have testified that it will not change the relative position of the United States among the naval powers of the world. "I think the time has come," said Mr. Daniels, "when we should adopt a continuing program for a period of years. I advocate a five-year program. I do not think it would be well to make it longer because wonderful changes are taking place in naval warfare and in naval construction and some great battle might come along and change all our plans."

The vessels to be constructed under the five-year program are ten Dreadnoughts, six battle cruisers, eight five coast submarines, fifteen fleet submarines, ten scouts, fifty destroyers, four gunboats, one hospital ship, two ammunition ships, two fuel ships and one repair ship.

Regarding the advisability of constructing battle cruisers in place of Dreadnoughts Secretary Daniels emphasized the value of the latter, but said that the majority of naval officers, including members of the General Board and War College, believed in the battle cruiser.
